Previously...

Valentine Gallo is now a made man... with that comes new responsibilities to one of the all-powerful five families that have completely taken over most of the East Coast. Valentine is partnered with protection in the form of Jagger Rose. The first time Valentine ever leaves the family territory, he and Jagger are sent to Washington, D.C., to deliver a package.

Valentine delivers the package to a United States senator. To everyone's horror, the package explodes, killing the senator and Valentine's best friend, Dino, which casts suspicion over himself, Jagger, and the entire family.

While he's still reeling from these shocking events, Valentine's mother, Madonna, takes Valentine into a secret room in her house where she reveals that Valentine was born a double agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Valentine rejects his mother's plan. In return the FBI takes her away against her will.

Meanwhile, the Don of the family tasks Valentine and Jagger with finding out who set them up, and they find themselves the target of a CIA assassination attempt.
