

THE IMPERIAL WAR MUSEUM.

Yeah, how did I guess you had an ulterior motive for accompanying Valence and me to do the security pass?

Seriously? We're in hawkish times, James. And you can't fault his honesty.

Still...in advance of an official trip.

It's not good form.

Yeah, maybe not. He's new. He'll learn.

You never know. He is coming here. This place does tend to bring back everything. All the wars, cold and hot...

It's a pointed choice.

Our diplomatic boys are good at soft reminders of history...

I do understand there's a wonderful exhibit of the early days of MI6.

M sent all manner of old gizmos down...

As a Brit, I know it's your favourite pastime, but I don't think you wanted to just reminisce about the past and have a good moan.

What do you need to know?

Now, it's not MIG's jurisdiction...

...but I understand that Valence has been...uncooperative with MIS over security on the trip. He claimed it was under the Secretary's express orders.

Even more uncooperative than the CIA have been with us.

I suspect the Kremlin is getting more hard data from you than us, through one channel or another.

M wants to know. Off the record.

Is this how it's going to be?

The secretary is new. He's an isolationist and an arrogant one.

But he's not stupid. Honestly? I don't know. Everything's unpredictable now.

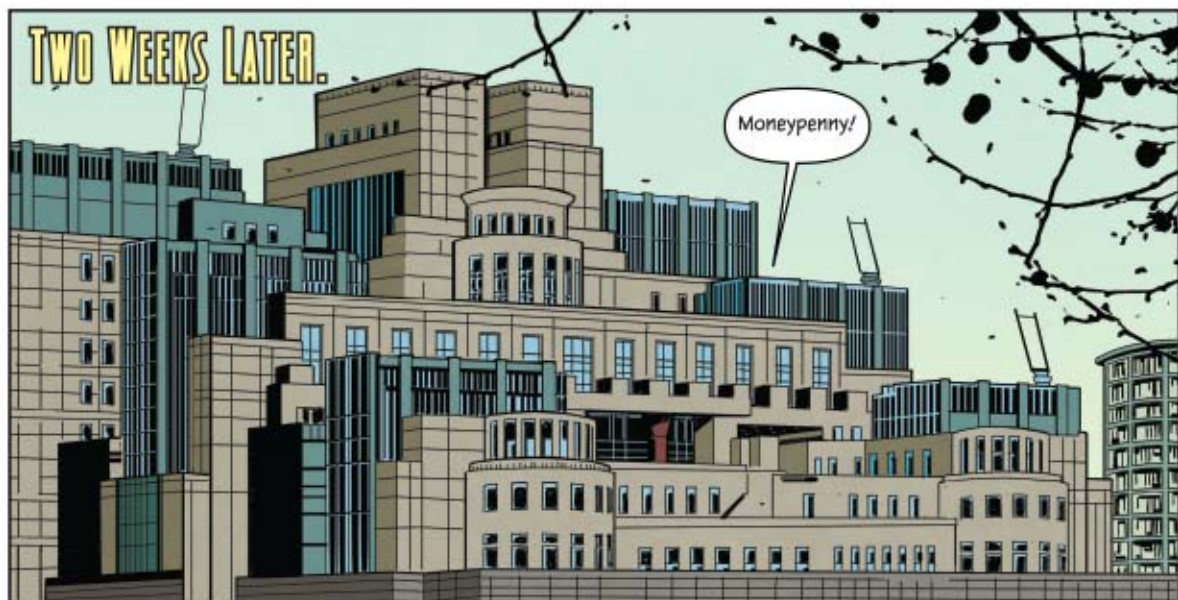

It's a nationalist time.

You guys should know that.

Now we work out what that means.

TWO WEEKS LATER.

Go straight through, James.

M's waiting.

You are curt and compelling today, Moneypenny.

Go straight through, James.

M's waiting.

I was so looking forward to a little chat.

I love your hair.

James! This is--

Sorry, Moneypenny. No time to chat.

I need to go through.

Don't you know?

M's waiting.

Presents, Sir?

You shouldn't have.

Not the time, OOT.

There's a delicate, possibly time-sensitive issue that needs handling with utter discretion.

The latest package came this morning.

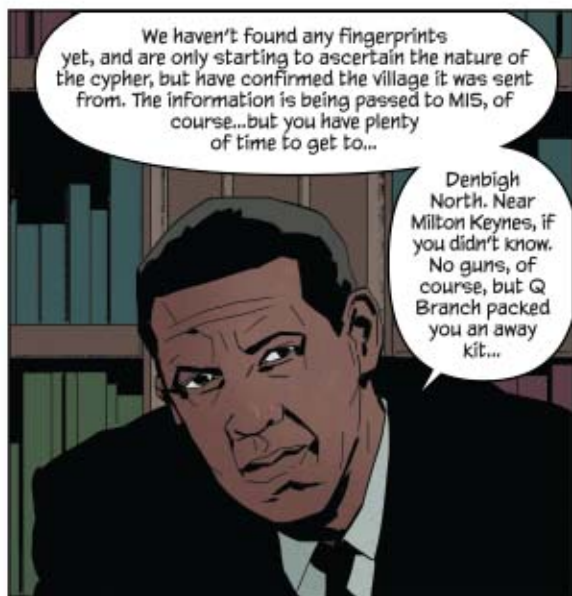

It included these clippings.

ALEXANDER THOMAS

YANK INSULT TO BRITAIN!

Ah.

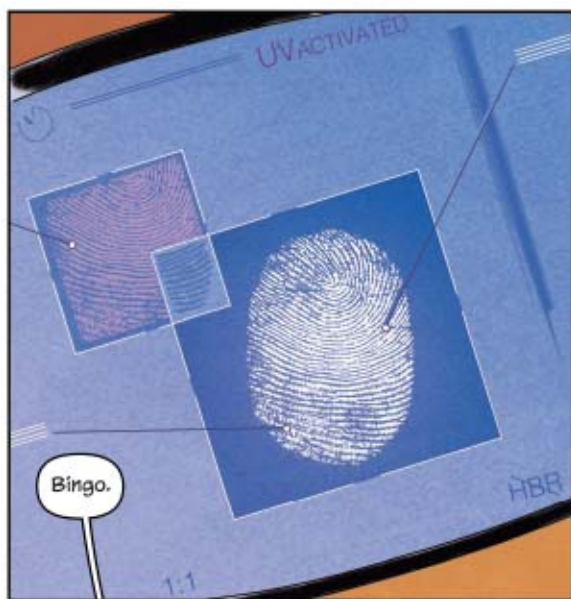

Good work, Bond. Anything else?

Bletchley Park

Yes. You were wondering what cypher the messages were using?

BLETCHLEY PARK.

It's Enigma code.

