DO THE JOB

TWENTY YEARS AGO...

The Chinese government demonstrates its superiority in science by announcing the creation of Panda Dogs, the world's first "duo-spliced" commercial hybrid. People stand in line for days for the chance to own one.

EIGHTEEN YEARS AGO...

Desperate to keep pace with China, the U.S. encourages companies to fast-track genetic research into duo-spliced animals. The "Gene Race" begins.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO...

Due to the growing number of legal and illegal hybrid animals, Congress federalizes Animal Control. With catchpoles and the occasional tranq-rifle, the officers attempt to stem the rising tide.

NOW...

Hybrid animals have transformed society, affecting pet ownership, gambling, agriculture and every aspect of life. And after two decades, the front-line officers are still just trying to do the job... and survive.
