Wait, did I say the Spider-Man theme song? Obviously I meant the Squirrel Girl! theme song. Who even IS Spider-Man?

And don't forget today's also the start of my secret identity, so the fact that Doreen Green is Squirrel Girl is privileged information as of rightttt...now.

I still don't see why you need one.

My enemies might go after my loved ones, T!

What enemies are you talking about? You're the unbeatable Squirrel Girl! Who doesn't like you?

I don't know!

Jerks, I guess?

You sure you don't want the squirrel army to carry these for you?

I'm sure, Tippy, but thank you. Secret identity, remember? I'm Doreen Green, completely regular college student.

Who just happens to have a tail?

Nope! Who knows how to tuck her tail into her pants...

...and who just happens to appear to have a conspicuously large and conspicuously awesome butt.

Come on, Tippy. Let's do this.

I still don't see why you're going to college in the first place, Doreen. Nobody in my family ever went to college, and they all turned out great! Now they all live alone in trees!

That does sound pretty great. But I want to be the best me I can be, and there's more to being a super hero than just punching the strongest, you know? I want to be able to help people. And that means I gotta go to Empire State University to get educated!

What do you even study to become a super hero, anyway? Human kinesiology? Human... detection?
OF...of crimes?

Nah. Better.

Computer science.

WHAT?!

You got accepted into college and you're not even gonna major in SQUIRRELS?

Tips, higher education is about bettering yourself, and I already know literally everything about squirrels. I'm Squirrel Girl. I'm not Achieving Consistency Across Distributed Database Systems Girl.

Well.

Not yet.

There's more to being a super hero than just being the strongest! For example, you might also be the Fastest, or the smartest, or have the ability to breathe in space like it isn't even a big deal.
