

On occasion, I have to convince people that I'm not suicidal.

This will reassure no one.

Blind and-- thanks to the screams of the motors-- functionally deaf--

--I have no business riding a tightrope seven hundred feet above the Golden Gate Strait.

Choking.

Slipping.

Cycle's vibrations make my radar sense practically useless.

I never dreamed this would be so utterly impossible. But if I don't catch up to the man in front of me...

...he's going to die.

PREVIOUSLY:

After years of maintaining a secret identity to protect those he loves, Matt Murdock has come clean to the world: He is Daredevil. His heightened senses, including 360-degree radar sense are now a matter of public record.

In order to protect his best friend, Foggy Nelson from Daredevil's enemies, Matt very publicly faked Foggy's death. They then moved to San Francisco, where Matt opened a new law practice with his new girlfriend, Kirsten McDuffie.

Recently, Matt was hired by ex-foe, George Smith, the retired Stunt-Master, to build a case against a younger stuntman who had stolen the mantel. Instead, the new Stunt-Master challenged Daredevil, causing Smith to take his own life. Daredevil confronted the charlatan, only to discover that Smith's death had been faked and he'd been kidnapped!

George Smith will be the latest in the string of sacrificial lambs Stunt-Master uses to pull off his "back from the dead" show-stoppers.

George is helpless, his bike remote-navigated and almost certainly booby-trapped.

So why would the Stunt-Master give me a chance to save him, unless--

HE'S CATCHING UP? WITHOUT EYES? HOW--

NEVER MIND. IF PAREDEVIL'S NOT GOING TO DO US THE COURTESY OF FALLING, THEN HAND ME THE CONTROLS!

--unless I never had a chance!
