

Once Eugene "Flash" Thompson got his chance to be a hero, he refused to give it up. When he lost both his legs serving his country, Flash formed a symbiotic bond with an alien parasite. It functioned as a body-morphing suit that enabled him to continue serving others. Then, when helping on one planet wasn't enough, he enlisted in the Guardians of the Galaxy. And after his symbiote, a member of the Klyntar species, was purified on its home planet, Flash expanded his range once again. He's answered the Klyntar call to serve as an Agent of the Cosmos.

Now Flash is swashbuckling his way across the universe as...

VENOM

SPACE KNIGHT

Venom rescued an alien mother and her children from a space pirate who wanted to use their blood as a chemical weapon. While Venom returned the family to their home planet he took another rescued victim, the melancholy and mechanical 803, as a new crew member. Now it's smooth sailing from here on out! Except...what kind of monster was that pirate working for, and who's piloting that imposing vessel following Flash?
