Natasha Romanoff, A.K.A. the Black Widow, is an ex-KGB assassin trained in the notorious Red Room. She turned her back on Russia and joined the Avengers years ago, but the path to atonement is long, and there's still red in her ledger. Recently she was killed and resurrected as a clone with implanted memories. Now the past is coming back to her...and it's out for vengeance.

WEB OF BLACK WIDOW

Natasha is on a mission to track down some of the powerful people and companies who benefited from her skills as a Red Room spy. But with no evidence of their illegal activities and only her own half-missing memories to rely on, the Widow has to work off the grid—and away from the Avengers.

And as Natasha makes enemies of old friends, a mysterious figure is watching her from the shadows. Whoever it is, they've started murdering civilians while dressed as Widow. And Nat's memory loss is getting worse; visions of all the people she's failed are resurfacing half complete and increasingly haunting. With no clue who's doing this to her or why, the Black Widow is growing desperate...
